Foundations of Representative Government in Maryland, 1632-1715

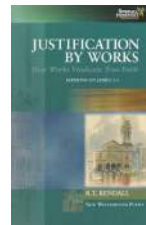

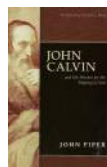

By David William Jordan.
C.U.P.-1987. 10+256pp. Paper back RRP £39.99 for £9.95

The earliest forms of representative government were to be found in Maryland from its founding in 1632. In this book, David W. Jordan traces the establishment of the legislative assembly, the development of that central institution through the seventeenth century, and changing opinions about its proper place in the governance of Maryland. Considerable discord initially existed in Maryland and other colonies over the appropriate powers and organization of any assembly of freemen. The colonial proprietors - the Calverts - never envisaged as active a body as many colonists desired, nor one so independent of proprietary dominance. Specific issues of contention varied, but throughout the century debates erupted over the role of the freemen and their representatives within the legislature. Ultimately, the resumption of proprietary authority in 1715 brought an important acknowledgment of substantial gains in representative government that became the foundation of the American political system.

"Authors to Themselves" Milton and the Revelation of History

By Marshall Grossman. C.U.P. d.w.
12+242pp. RRP £79.99 for £9.95

Grossman examines the narrative form of Paradise Lost to discover Milton's thoroughly modern concept of self. Banished from paradise, the epic poem's protagonists become 'authors to themselves in all/Both what they judge and what they choose', left to create their own story in relation to the story already written by God. Grossman believes the resulting structure of the poem must be understood in the context of seventeenth-century historical and theological developments, specifically Bacon's notion of history as progress and Protestant theology's notion of the inner voice. The book draws upon recent works in hermeneutics and analytic history to develop the argument that there is a common structure to the experience of time in action and in narrative. In developing this thesis, Grossman draws on the work Stephen Greenblatt, Ricoeur, Todorov, Genette, Derrida and Lacan to construct an original reading of Paradise Lost that will fascinate Miltonists, specialists in seventeenth-century literature, and readers concerned with narrative theory.

The Family of Love in English Society, 1550-1630

By Christopher W. Marsh. C.U.P. d.w. 17+305pp. Paperback RRP £39.99 for £9.95

This book traces the history of the outlawed mystical fellowship, the 'Family of Love', in sixteenth- and seventeenth-century England. The Familists, devoted followers of a Messianic Dutch mystic named 'H. N.', were passionately denounced by many literate contemporaries, and an association with extremism, subversion and hypocrisy has endured. The author tracks the English Familists into their houses, fields and places of work. The author also examines the distinctive way of life which was developed by Family members within a wider society that, on the face of it, was hostile to religious dissenters: one surprising conclusion is that most English men and women seem to have possessed an impressive capacity to tolerate known 'heretics' in their midst.

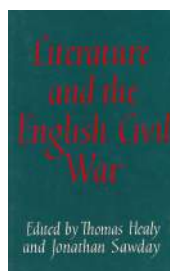

Milton and the Drama of History. Historical Vision, Iconoclasm, and the Literary Imagination.

By David Loewenstein. C.U.P. d.w. 10+197pp. RRP £84.99 for £9.95

How did Milton's understanding of history relate to his literary expression of it? This book explores the role of history in Milton's literary works. It focuses on the writer's imaginative responses to the historical process - his interpretations of the past, visions of the future, and sense of the contemporary historical moment. David Loewenstein presents Milton as a controversial writer actively engaged in shaping, representing and participating in the drama of history of his age. Highlighting the apocalyptic and iconoclastic components of Milton's historical vision, the book examines the more turbulent dimensions of his polemic and poetic works.

Literature and the English Civil War

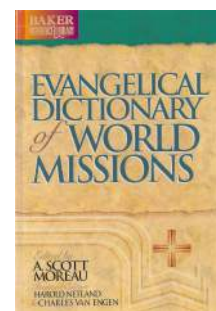

Edited by Thomas Healy and Jonathan Sawday. C.U.P. d.w. 8+268pp. Paperback RRP £27.99 for £9.95

Literature and the English Civil War charts the relationship between literary texts and their historical context during this era of profound change and upheaval for British society and culture. Essays in the volume focus on issues of ideology and genre, often with reference to topical debates about how the events of 1640-1660 can best be characterised. There are pieces on the politics of the masque; lyric and devotional poetry; women's writing and the Civil War; attitudes towards Ireland; colonialism; madness and division; individual writers such as Hobbes, Marvell, and Milton;

Intelligence and Espionage in the Reign of Charles II, 1660-1685

By Alan Marshall. C.U.P. d.w.
16+334pp. Paperback RRP £44.99
for £9.95

This is the first history and analysis of the intelligence and espionage activities of the regime of Charles II (1660–85). It is concerned with the mechanics, activities and philosophy of the intelligence system which developed under the auspices of the office of the Secretary of State and which emerged in the face of the problems of conspiracy and international politics. It examines the development of intelligence networks on a local and international level, the use made of the Post Office, codes and ciphers, and the employment of spies, informers and assassins. The careers of a number of spies employed by the regime are examined through a series of detailed case studies. The book provides a balanced portrait of the dark byways of Restoration politics, particularly in the 1660s and 1670s, and fills an important gap in the current literature.

New England's Generation. The Great Migration and the formation of Society and Culture in the Seventeenth Century.

By Virginia Dejohn Anderson. C.U.P.
hb. 10+232pp. Paperback RRP
£29.99 for £9.95

Through analyses of the process of migration and settlement and of the symbolic meaning that participants attached to their experiences, this book tells the story of New England's origins as one of dynamism and change. Focusing on the lives of nearly seven-hundred emigrants, the narrative examines such topics as the settlers' motives for leaving England, their experience of the voyage, their patterns of settlement in the New World, and their search for economic security in a new land.

Always Among Us. Images of the Poor in Zwingli's Zurich

By Lee Palmer Wandel. C.U.P. d.w.
7+199pp. Paperback RRP £24.99
for £9.95

In this elegantly written book, Lee Wandel discusses the relationship between the reform of poor relief and the Protestant Reformation in early sixteenth-century Zurich. In the introduction she traces the various ways that poverty had been evaluated, and its social and religious connotations, up to the sixteenth century. The first chapter provides a portrait of sixteenth-century Zurich. The next three chapters explore the discussion of the poor in various media of the town. The second chapter examines the sermons and pamphlets of Huldrych Zwingli, who was preaching that the poor were the true images of God. The third chapter addresses printed images depicting Christ calling beggars and other poor folk to Him, which appeared on title pages of Zwingli's pamphlets. The fourth chapter turns to the language of legislation, and in particular the poor ordinances of 1520 and 1525.

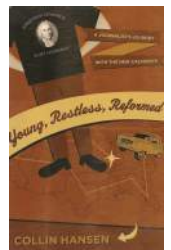

Jesus and the Holy City. New Testament Perspectives on Jerusalem

By P. W. L. Walker. Eerd. Lfpb.

A Modern Exposition of the 1689 Baptist Confession of Faith

By Samuel E. Waldron. E.P.
d.w.490pp. RRP £24.95 for £12.95

In this extensive exposition, the author, Sam Waldron, shows that the '1689' Confession is a masterly statement of the historic Christian faith. He writes in a direct and lucid style that will help ministers, students and laymen alike to a clear understanding of this Confession and to its relevance and application to our modern age. This exposition was originally published in 1989 to mark the 300th anniversary of the publication of the Second London Confession, which also became known as the '1689 Baptist Confession of Faith'. Today, reformed Baptists world-wide hold this Confession in high esteem and many churches continue to regard it as their official statement of faith.

King James's Bible: A Selection

Edited by W. H. Stevenson. Longman.
Lfpb. 25+537pp. £5.95

This selection sets out, with the secular reader in mind, to show that the Authorized (or King James) Version of the bible is as impressive and readable as it ever was. It will help the reader understand and appreciate this famous text, and something of the sixteenth-century practices and concerns that shaped this particular translation. Headnotes and annotations elucidate the background and draw attention to matters of literary and stylistic interest. Some of the passages are famous, others less so, but together, they enable the reader to investigate the rest of the bible at leisure. This book will prove essential reading to all students and teachers of English and other European literatures, and of social history. It will also appeal to the general reader who has an interest in literature and history.

Karl Barth. Centenary Essays

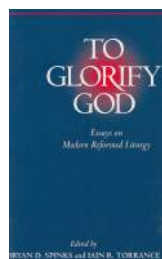

Edited by S. W. Sykes. C. U. P. 171pp.
Paperback RRP. £21.99 for £6.95

This short volume, which emerged from the Karl Barth centenary year in 1986, brings together a collection of essays which makes an important contribution to Barth interpretation. Yet while his impact and influence upon modern theology has been great, Barth has been subject, too, to suspicion and sometimes to fierce opposition. The contributors to this book examine and refute some of the more simplistic reasons why the thought of Karl Barth has had a somewhat limited appeal in modern English-language theology.

The Autonomy Theme in the Church Dogmatics. Karl Barth and His Critics

By John Macken S. J. C.U.P. d.w.
11+232pp. RRP £74.99 for £9.95

In this careful study Fater Macken shows that a major re-interpretation of Barth's thought in this regard took place since 1968, and that - far from being an opponent of human freedom in relation to God - Barth is now thought to have proposed a positive account of human autonomy as his theology developed. Dr Macken demonstrates that Barth was neither fundamentalist nor conservative, but a creative and original thinker.

To Glorify God. Essays on Modern Reformed Liturgy

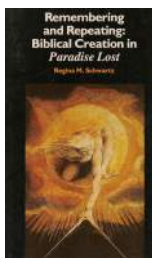

Edited by Bryan D. Spinks and Iain R. Torrance. T & T Clark. D.w. 15+272pp
£5.95

A major evaluation of the new Reformed American Presbyterian and Church of Scotland liturgies. These specially commissioned studies by international experts examine the background and theology of the two recent liturgical compilations in the English-speaking Reformed tradition. They explore a wide range of topics from the doctrine of God, the Atonement, and language, to the merits of the respective marriage and funeral rites. They also demonstrate the major contributions that the liturgies have made to the renewal of worship in the late twentieth-century church.

Remembering and Repeating. Biblical Creation in Paradise Lost.

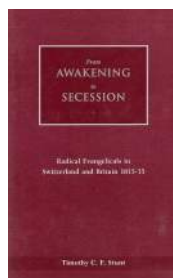

By Regina M. Schwartz. C. U. P. d.w. 9+144pp. RRP £74.99 for £9.95

Despite Milton's preoccupation with origins, these elude him: his creation stories are always mediated. Even the creation of the universe is not depicted as a single event that occurred once and for all time in a distant past; instead, world-order must be perpetually reasserted, before the ever present threat of chaos. That description of Milton's universe also applies to his other creation, the poem, where the chaos that forever threatens is the abyss of interpretation. Milton's creations are not asserted despite this threat, but because of it; that is, chaos does not simply threaten to undo order, for chaos inheres in it. While Milton's inability to discover a privileged origin allies him with postmodernism - and so this study, originally published in 1988, engages thinkers like Freud, Nietzsche, Derrida, and Lacan - that insight is far more ancient. According to Regina Schwartz, the Bible offers Milton his pattern of repeated beginnings.

From Awakening to Secession. Radical Evangelicals in Switzerland and Britain 1815-35.

By Timothy C. F. Stunt. T & T Clark. D.w. 13+402pp. RRP £75.00 for £9.95

A major study of the impact of the Swiss RTveil (Awakening) on British evangelicals in the 1820s. This book provides an important synthesis of a variety of tendencies and movements which have usually been treated and understood as separate. By resisting the temptation to read back into the 1820s the partisan labels of later decades, Timothy Stunt rediscovers the common ground which was shared by a wide spectrum of Christians who were later seen as mutually hostile. The author considers the influence of the Awakening on radical attitudes to mission and ecclesiastical radicalism in Ireland, pre-Tractarian Oxford, and Scotland. In dealing with the reluctant movement towards secession from the established church, Stunt illuminates and reinterprets the origins of the early Catholic Apostolic Church and the Brethren.

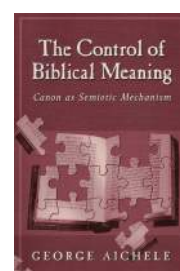

Constructing the World. A Study in Paul's Cosmological Language

By Edward Adams. T & T Clark. D.w. 20+300pp RRP £75.00 for £9.95

In this ground-breaking study of Paul, Dr Adams focuses on Paul's understanding and use of cosmological concepts, such as 'world' and 'creation'. Adams brings to bear the most recently developed disciplines, including 'critical linguistics', to the interpretation of Pauline texts, showing up, for example, the differing perspectives on the world of 1 Corinthians and Romans. He examines Paul's historical and social context and illuminates the whole cosmological project of Pauline Christianity.

The Control of Meaning. Canon as Semiotic Mechanism

By George Aichele. Trinity Press. Lf. 11+259pp. RRP £29.99 for £6.95

In The Control of Biblical Meaning, George Aichele draws deeply on the insights of poststructuralist literary theory as he pursues these questions. He also engages in close readings of specific biblical and nonbiblical texts to demonstrate ways that canon controls the meanings of its texts. With dazzling skill, Aichele interrogates the form and function of canon as a mechanism that both reveals and conceals texts from its readers

A Church History of Scotland

By J. H. S. Burleigh. Edinburgh-1988. hb. 456pp+fold out chart £3.00

First published by Oxford University Press, this fine volume has gone through a further three printings. It presents to the general reader, a clear and succinct overview of Church History in Scotland from Roman Britain, through the Medieval Church, Reformation, Establishment etc. right up to 1929 and beyond. With bibliography and useful chart depicting the divisions in the Scottish Church from 1688.

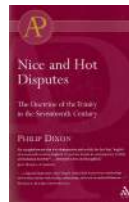

J. H. S. Burleigh was Principal of New College and Professor of Church History at Edinburgh University. He was also, in 1960, moderator of the Church of Scotland.

Untrammelled by all but a few footnotes, the narrative pulses on through the main events, not going into the tiniest details. This method makes it easier for reading.

We think that it is, overall, the best modern 1 volume history of the Kirk available at present. It was for years required reading for Divinity students. Ideal for Church study groups.

The Six Johns of the Scottish Reformation with the Scots Confession of Faith 1560.

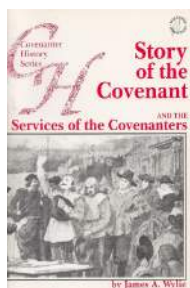

By Dr. S. J. Millar
-2015. lfpb. 9+234 pages. £7.95

In this convenient biographical collection, Dr Millar gives us a look at the lives of 'the Six Johns' of the Scottish Reformation. We have all heard of the life of John Knox, and deservedly so, but now we get to know the other leading lights of the Scottish Reformation. John Willock, John Winram, John Spottiswood, John Row and John Douglas all played a major part in establishing reform in Scotland and in the composition of the Scots Confession of Faith, 1560, which is conveniently appended at the back of the volume. This was still used as the set confession of the Church in Scotland until 1647, when the Westminster Standards replaced it.

The Scottish Covenanters. Their History and Distinctive Doctrines.

By J. G. Vos. Blue Banner - 1998.
Lfpb. 231pp. £7.95

If you only read one book on the Covenanters this is the one to have. Not only does Vos provide an insightful, readable and enjoyable account but he sets it in proper context taking us from the Reformation in 1560 right through the Revolution period until the formation of the Reformed Presbyterian Church. Used as a text book for years this is the perfect book on the subject.

The Worship of God. The Importance of Purity of Worship, The Westminster Directory of Public Worship and How Should Our Churches Worship Today.

By Malcolm H. Watts and David Silversides. Marpet Press – 1998.
Bklt. 71pp £3.95

Three excellent papers given at the Salisbury Conference, 1997.

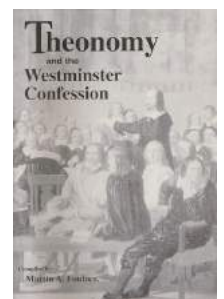

Theonomy and the Westminster Confession

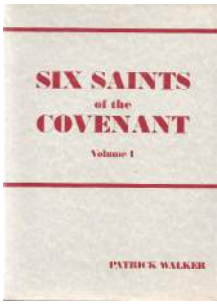

By Martin A. Foulner. Marpet Press – 1997. Bklt. 64pp

Does the Westminster Confession teach Theonomy? Martin Foulner lets the Reformers, Puritans and, especially the Westminster Divines speak for themselves with extracts taken from their own works.

These quotations give an in depth look at Puritan teaching on the application of God's Law to society.

This book provides an answer to those who, misquote, or quote out of context, these great men of the past.

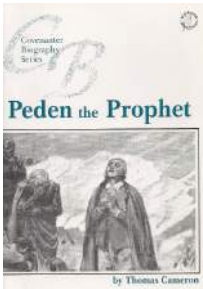

Six Saints of The Covenant. Alexander Peden : John Semple : John Welwood : Richard Cameron : Donald Cargill : Walter Smith.

By Patrick Walker. Blue Banner – 1995. D.w. 2 Volumes £29.95

These six lives are not only a great way to learn of the Covenanters but also the culture and controversies of the day. Walker was an eyewitness of these events and his intimate knowledge and bold homely style of writing make him one of the most interesting of Scots historians. Walker calls a spade a spade and doesn't mind who he offends.

His history is raw, pithy, partisan and immensely enjoyable. Edited by David Hay Fleming.

Peden the Prophet. "Puir Auld Sandy."

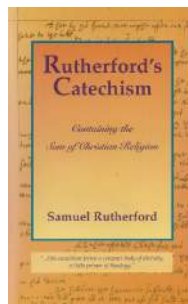

By Thomas Cameron.
Blue Banner – 1998. bklt. 29pp.
£2.50

"A Thrilling tale of 300 years ago, of "The Killing Times" in Scotland when 18000 person left their homes and many laid down their lives, rather than deny the Faith"

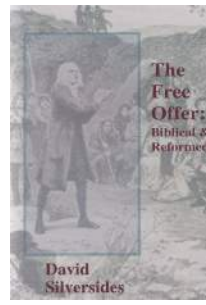

A fine, accessible biographical booklet on one of the most well known Covenanter Preachers, Alexander Peden.

Rutherford's Catechism ; Or, The Sum of Christian Religion

By Samuel Rutherford. Blue Banner- 1998. Lfpb. 105pp. Edited by A.F. Mitchell £5.50

In the 17th Century many ministers produced their own catechisms for instructing their congregations. Rutherford was first and foremost a pastor and this work shows the care and concern he had for his flock. This is the first time that this work has been available on its own although originally was printed in Mitchell's collection of Catechisms. This is a carefully modernized spelling version that has retained all the original words.

The Free Offer: Biblical and Reformed

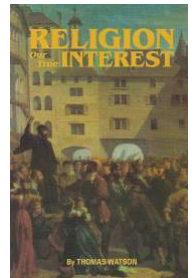

By Rev. David Silversides
Marpet Press – 2005. Lfpb. 128pp
£6.95

" The author's purpose is to establish the doctrines of scripture on the Free Offer and has done so with considerable precision and force." M. H. Watts.

An able expression of what the Reformed and Protestants meant by "Free Offer". Excellent little book.

Religion Our True Interest, Or, Practical Notes on the Third Chapter of Malachi verses 16, 17 and 18.

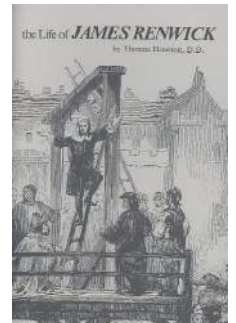

By Thomas Watson Blue Banner – 1992. Lfpb. 11+129pp £4.95

There is much spiritualness to be gained from this little gem of a book dealing with Malachi 3:16, 17, 18. Spurgeon said of it " This would be a great find if only we could come at it, for Watson is one of the clearest and liveliest Puritan authors. We fear we shall never see his commentary, for we have tried to obtain it, and tried in vain" – Commenting and Commentaries.

The Life of James Renwick

By Thomas Houston. Blue Banner -1987.bklt. 62pp. £2.50

An historical sketch of his life and martyrdom and a vindication of his testimony and character. The perfect introduction to the life of this noble Covenanting Minister, who would later become the last Minister to be publicly Martyred.
