Before "Build the wall" there was "Tear down this wall" If Trump is for immigration controls, then the Left will demand the opposite. And so today talk of "open borders" has entered mainstream liberal discourse, where once it was confined to radical free market think tanks and libertarian anarchist circles. While no serious political party of the Left is offering concrete proposals for a truly borderless society, by embracing the moral arguments of the open-borders Left and the economic arguments of free market think tanks, the Left has painted itself into a corner. If "no human is illegal," as the protest chant goes, the Left is implicitly accept This article presents the case against immigration controls.
