Annotation: Dark Emu puts forward an argument for a reconsideration of the hunter-gatherer tag for precolonial Aboriginal Australians. The evidence insists that Aboriginal people right across the continent were using domesticated plants, sowing, harvesting, irrigating and storing-behaviours inconsistent with the hunter-gatherer tag. Gerritsen and Gammage in their latest books support this premise but Pascoe takes this further and challenges the hunter-gatherer tag as a convenient lie. Almost all the evidence comes from the records and diaries of the Australian explorers, impeccable sources.

Start by marking "Primitive Man And His Ways: Patterns of Life in Some Native Societies" as Want to Read: Want to Read saving! Want to Read. A renowned anthropologist examines six societies that have been bypassed by civilization and have adapted their way of life to the primitive forces of nature. In the civilized world, man has learned to control nature and its hostilities; on the fringes of this world there still exists societies which remain in a primitive state of culture. The book's copyrighted '72, so I imagine the use of descriptors such as "negro natives" may seem a liiiiittle dated to a modern anthropology student, but hey! I don't know that for sure, and wouldn't know how to phrase the question for Google anyway.
