

SEMESTER AT SEA COURSE SYLLABUS

Voyage: Fall 2013

Discipline: Philosophy

PHIL 2510: Global Ethics

Division: Lower Division

Faculty Name: Brian R. Clack

Pre-requisites: One lower division philosophy course.

COURSE DESCRIPTION

This upper division class will explore some major elements in moral philosophy, with a focus upon moral and cultural diversity. The class will consider and evaluate the relativist and subjectivist conclusions often drawn from the facts of moral diversity, and will explore different religious systems of morality (Christianity, Islam, Buddhism) as well as the differences between religious and secular approaches to ethics. After these theoretical matters have been addressed we will turn our attention to issues of practical moral concern. Such issues will include perennial matters of life and death (abortion, euthanasia, the killing of animals) and global issues arising from our increasingly interconnected global situation (world poverty, environmental ethics, war, torture and terrorism).

COURSE OBJECTIVES

By the end of the course students should be able:

- (i) To describe the main tenets of the major ethical theories (e.g. Utilitarianism, Kantianism) in essay form.
- (ii) To identify specific moral problems and apply these ethical theories to them.
- (iii) To appreciate the diversity of moral perspectives and explain how each perspective makes judgments about specific moral problems.
- (iv) To understand the specific range of global moral problems arising from an increasingly inter-related world.

FIELD WORK

FIELD LAB (At least 20 percent of the contact hours for each course, to be led by the instructor.) Attendance and participation in the Field Lab is MANDATORY.

First Choice: Hamburg: The theme of this field lab will be empathy and there will be two specific activities: a visit to the Dialog im Dunklen [Dialogue in the Dark], a 90 minute experience during which participants are led through various activities and challenges in total darkness by legally blind guides. The second activity is a visit to the Kunsthalle, an art museum in which we will explore the role of empathic understanding in art. These activities are linked to the sections of the class focused on compassion and empathy in moral theory (principally, the philosophy of Schopenhauer).

Second Choice: Casablanca: We would spend the day at the White Mosque and the field lab would be related to themes in Islamic ethics.

FIELD ASSIGNMENTS

- After completion of the field lab in Hamburg, students will complete an essay on Arthur Schopenhauer and the role of sympathy and empathy in morality.
- In addition to the specific field lab assignment, students will keep a voyage journal. Here, students will respond to class- and port-specific philosophical prompts that will be generated organically during the voyage and assigned before debarkation at each port.
- The journal and the field lab assignment will be graded separately. A detailed breakdown of percentages can be found below.

METHODS OF EVALUATION / GRADING RUBRIC

Grades will be based upon five assessed pieces of work:

- (1) Field lab essay on Schopenhauer and sympathy (10%)
- (2) A mid-term test on theoretical issues in ethics (20%)
- (3) A five-page paper on an issue in practical ethics (30%)
- (4) A journal relating to field assignments (10%)
- (5) The final examination (30%)

Class participation may also figure in the determination of grades.

HONOR CODE

Semester at Sea students enroll in an academic program administered by the University of Virginia, and thus bind themselves to the University's honor code. The code prohibits all acts of lying, cheating, and stealing. Please consult the Voyager's Handbook for further explanation of what constitutes an honor offense.

Each written assignment for this course must be pledged by the student as follows: "On my honor as a student, I pledge that I have neither given nor received aid on this assignment." The pledge must be signed, or, in the case of an electronic file, signed "[signed]."
