Dear Reader,

We are beginning the new year with a first overview of the many exhibitions, conferences and photo festivals planned for the coming months.

Our next PhotoResearcher No 27 “Playing the Photograph” will come out in April 2017. We hope you will find many of our recommendations interesting and wish you pleasant reading.

Uwe Schögl (President of the ESHPh), Ulla Fischer-Westhauser (Vice-president)

Anna Auer - ESHPh Honorary President

Professor Anna Auer was unanimously appointed Honorary President of the European Society for the History of Photography (ESHPh) at the General Assembly of the Society held on 26 October 2016. The excellence of Anna Auer's achievements in the fields of photography and its history as a scientist, author and curator of numerous publications and exhibitions, as well as founder and director of the photo gallery “Die Brücke”, have made a lasting impact and received great recognition from the international photo community.

The significance of her ten years of activity as President of the ESHPh is just as praiseworthy. Under Anna Auer's leadership, the ESHPh developed into a globally active research forum: five organised symposia (incl. proceedings) in cooperation with European partners, the relaunch of PhotoResearcher as a regularly-published specialist journal and the massive increase in the number of members of the ESHPh are only three of the many highlights on her list of successes. In addition, she paved the Society's way into the future making it possible for me to take over a flourishing community when I was elected President in 2010.

Professor Anna Auer more than satisfies the stipulation that an Honorary President must have contributed “exceptional services to the Society and the Society's goals” as included in the statutes of the ESHPh (§ 5, Para. 3).

Anna Auer's activities have always been founded on her comprehensive expertise coupled with her permanent ambition to discover something new. And, it therefore comes as no surprise that Anna Auer – who will celebrate a “special” birthday soon – continues to be active scientifically and recently set sail towards new horizons of knowledge: the completion of a two-year study course in direction, camerawork and editing at the “Filmschule Wien”.

Under the Sun: Reimagining Max Dupain's Sunbaker

Exhibition: 18 February – 17 April 2017

For this large scale exhibition ACP has invited 15 artists to create new works in response to the iconic Sunbaker by revered Australian photographer Max Dupain. Peta Clancy, Christopher Day, Destiny Deacon, Michaela Gleave, Nasim Nasr, Sara Oscar, Julie Rrap, Khaled Sabsabi, Yhonnie Scarce, Christian Thompson, Angela Tiatia, Kawita Vatanajyankur, Daniel Von Sturmer, Justene Williams and William Yang not only interrogate the social and political implications embedded within this image but also challenge the status of this photograph in our visual culture. Pushing the boundaries of the photographic medium, their works will expose the aesthetic complexities at play in discussions around collective identity. .

Acting for the Camera

Exhibition: 10 March – 5 June 2017

With around 100 masterpieces by Ottomar Anschütz, Bill Brandt, | Brassai, John Coplans, Trude Fleischmann, Seiichi Furuya, Martin Imboden, Dora Kallmus, Seydou Keita, Rudolf Koppitz, Johann Victor Krämer, Heinrich Kühn, Helmar Lerski, Will McBride, Helmut Newton, Cora Pongracz, Otto Schmidt, Anton Josef Trcka, Erwin Wurm and Gregor Zivic, this third presentation of the Albertina's Photographic Collection examines the multifarious relationships between the individuals on either side of the lens. Its thematic chapters deal with expressive staging for the camera, work with anonymous models as part of scientific projects, photography as a model for painting, and photographers' own self-portrayal.

Elger Esser. Aetas

Exhibition: 28 January – 23 April 2017

This is the first presentation of Elger Esser's work in Austria. The focus of the exhibition is on the landscape – the main issue of his substantial work. With his classical compositions and use of historic photo techniques, the former Becher student is considered to follow in the tradition of baroque landscape painters and historic photographers of the late 19th century.

Disassembled Images - Contemporary Art after Allan Sekula

Conference: 2 – 4 March 2017

This conference takes the US artist, theoretician, critic, teacher and poet Allan Sekula's project Ship of Fools / The Dockers' Museum (2010-2013) as its point of departure. At the very end of his life Sekula produced this unfinished, multifaceted and variably installable work of art, which contains ca. 1250 objects. By taking as subject dock workers and seafarers, Sekula wished to pay tribute to all the joined, past efforts of human labor now irretrievably lost in history—a struggle he identifies as "Sisyphean." In doing so, Sekula provides a message of hope: his last work contributes to imagining possible forms of solidarity in a globalized economy confronted ever-more with its own limitations.

Reframing Family Photography

Conference: 21-23 September 2017

This conference will re-examine the genre and develop new ways of investigating the cultural politics of family photography. This critical task is all the more timely not just because of photography's transformation with the digital turn, but also because of recent historical shifts that have altered the composition and very meaning of kinship—including Cold War dislocations, the visibility of queer and trans* family belonging, transnational adoptions, and immigration under the auspices of family reunification.

Shaping Identities – Challenging Borders. Photographic Histories in Central and Eastern Europe

Conference: 09 – 10 May 2017

In association with Liber pro Arte (Warsaw) and Humboldt University (Berlin) The conference aims at challenging established limits within histories of photography. It asks how local circumstances affected the production, dissemination and reception of photography in the societies of Central and Eastern Europe, and how those interacted with trends and developments from abroad. As a follow-up event to the conference “Discovering ‘Peripheries’: Photographic Histories in Central and Eastern Europe” in Warsaw in 2016, this meeting wishes to build upon the exchange between researchers engaged with the subject from different disciplinary perspectives.

The second part of the Power of the Media exhibition

Exhibition: since 2 July 2015 – 31 December 2017

The Power of the Media exhibition has been realized in cooperation with the National Technical Museum (www.ntm.cz), who supplied most of the exhibits from their collections. Of special interest is the valuable film equipment in the second part of this exhibition. Image data for reproducing photos were provided by the National Technical Museum, the Museum of Decorative Arts in Prague, the Moravian Gallery in Brno and by Pavel Scheufler from the Scheufler Collection The exhibition will still continue with such themes as cinema, radio, television and new media. The scheduled time for the exhibition to be presented after the opening of its second part is seven years. The exhibition should be completed by 2017, when it will extend to about 500 m² of the second floor of the Museum.

In War and Peace

20 January – 20 August 2017

The many faces of the soldier's life, captured by photographers on and away from the battlefield. It is about a job steeped in political and social significance and, at the same time, the story of people trying to establish some kind of normality and everyday life under extreme conditions. The exhibition features soldiers from all over the world over the past 100 years, and also focuses on some of the photographers who have witnessed life and death in the world's hotspots.

In cooperation with Denmark's most acclaimed photojournalist Jan Grarup.

Festival of Political Photography 2017: Homeland

Events: 3 February – 29 April 2017

Food encompasses great global paradoxes. The Festival of Political Photography 2017 will highlight issues where food meets world politics, economy, environment and ethics.

Mapping the structures and effects of producing foodstuffs is a complex – and often nigh impossible – undertaking. How are the daily choices made by individuals connected to political decisions concerning the production and pricing of food, as well as official nutritional recommendations? Who is steering food consumption towards the path of environmental destruction? How does our collective consciousness allow mass production of meat or commercial fishing? The environmental effects of the global food industry, global warming, humanitarian tragedies, hunger, migration and wars are all somehow connected.

It is not possible to avoid the personal or universal effects of food. Through choices regarding ones eating habits, an individual shapes their body, identity and social and ethical standing. These choices are a link between an individual and the structures of world politics. A snack is a political act.

Exhibition: 14 February 2017 – 28 May 2017

French photographer and cinematographer of Romanian origin, Eli Lotar (Eliazar Lotar Teodorescu, Paris, 1905 - 1969) arrived in France in 1924 and rapidly became one of the first avant-garde photographers in Paris. Close to Germaine Krull —Lotar worked as her apprentice for a time —and later to the Surrealists, his work was published in many of the avant-garde publications of the day, and featured in several major international photography exhibitions, including Fotografie der Gegenwart, Film und Foto, Documents de la vie sociale, etc.

Ed van der Elsken

Exhibition: 13 June – 24 September 2017

Ed van der Elsken (1925-1990) is a unique figure in Dutch 20th-century documentary cinema and photography. As a photographer, his preferred subject was the street, and in cities like Paris, Amsterdam, Hong Kong or Tokyo, he enjoyed 'hunting' for subjects. Often qualified as a "photographer of marginal figures", he sought in reality an aesthetic form, a visual authenticity, devoid of artifice, a beauty that was sometimes openly sensual, at times even erotic.

Michael Najjar - Planetary Echoes

Exhibition: 22 April – 18 June 2017

Najjar's compositions capture echoes of formal and thematic similarities between our own home planet and other moons and planets in the solar system. His large-scale photographic works visualize extraterrestrial natural environments that look sublime and strangely familiar—but are in fact synthetic constructions of a not-too-distant future reality.

Exhibition: 24 June – 3 September 2017

The first retrospective on a figure in modern photography who has long been ignored: Fritz Block (1889–1955) first earned a reputation as an architect and adherent to Neues Bauen (New Building) in Hamburg, before he began taking photographs with a Leica camera in 1929. In the Hamburg harbor he took photographs of ships, bridges, and cranes in the style of New Objectivity and New Vision. Block was also a prominent travel photographer, producing visual reportages on Paris, Marseille, and Northern Africa. A particularly productive journey for him was his multiple-week trip to the US in 1931, which took him from New York to Detroit (the Ford factory) and Los Angeles. Photos by Block were published in magazines and in Die Form, the magazine of the German Werkbund. They were also shown in the exhibitions Das Lichtbild (München 1930) and Internationale Foto-Ausstellung (Hamburg 1932).

Peggy Buth. The Politics of Selection

Exhibition: 9 June – 3 September 2017

The roots of Peggy Buth's photographic and filmic case studies can be found in the urban plans of the 1960/70s. Buth's work raises questions about how the power relations in Western societies are reflected in the structure of urban environments. What, she asks, has happened to the utopia of social housing?

FOCUS Photography Festival Mumbai

Memory

Festival: 9 – 23 March 2017

The Photography Festival Mumbai takes place every two years, in the month of March. It was launched in 2013. Modelled on the democratic nature of photography, the premise of the festival revolves around making its rich history freely accessible to all. FOCUS extends out of the gallery space and onto the walls, shops and cafes of Mumbai as well into the very streets of the city.

For its third edition, the festival theme is Memory. In March 2017, this theme will explore how photographs and photographers have used the medium to construct and shape history, underpinning socio-political narratives and building geographies as well as retelling our very own personal stories. Since the birth of the medium we have used photography and its archives to revisit the past and talk about the present, to challenge what we think we remember, to deconstruct the grand pillars of history and extract new stories from the margins.

Encounters: Handling, Placing and Looking at Photographs in Relation to Migration

Call for Papers: 1 March 2017

Conference: 12-13 October 2017

This conference will analyze the entanglement between photography and migration by means of case studies as well as methodological, theoretical and artistic contributions. It seeks to investigate the "migration and photography complex" (paraphrasing Hevia 2009) in its aesthetic, material, affective, ethical, legal and archival dimensions by approaching important questions such as: How have experiences of migration shaped and reshaped the production and uses of photographic images, their subjects and motifs, their iconographies, their aesthetics, their object character and materiality? How do photographs circulate (in)between private and institutional networks with regards to their collection and exhibition as well as popular and artistic practices? Who are the actors and agents in these socio-political and aesthetic migration processes concerning image production, reception, transmission, translation and distribution? How do migration trajectories of people and photographs intersect and thereby shape vernacular, artistic and academic photographic practices?

The Manfred & Hanna Heiting Fellowship for photo-historical research

Application deadline: 12 March 2017

Fellowships are awarded for a six-month period. The focus of research should be related to the National Photo Collection held by the Rijksmuseum's Print Room. The Rijksmuseum will endeavor to enable publication of the Fellow's research. This could be an in-depth study of one photograph or photo book and/or its distribution; on a series of photographs or part of an oeuvre; on the aesthetic or technical aspects of photography; on the wider context of a photo book or album; or on combinations of art-historical research and research on materials and techniques.

The Rijksmuseum Fellowship Programme

As part of the Rijksmuseum Fellowship Programme, the Manfred & Hanna Heiting Fellowship is set out to train a new generation of museum professionals: inquisitive object-based specialists who will further develop understanding of Netherlandish art and history for the future. The Rijksmuseum will provide working space for the Fellows, in order to stimulate an exchange of knowledge, ideas and experience. Access will be provided to all necessary information in the museum, as well as to the library and the resources of the Netherlands Institute for Art History (RKD) in The Hague. Application and procedure: The closing date for all applications is 12 March 2017, at 6:00 p.m. (Amsterdam time/CET). Selection will be made by an international committee in April 2017. The committee consists of eminent scholars in the relevant fields of study from European universities and institutions, and members of the curatorial staff of the Rijksmuseum. Applicants will be notified by 1 May 2017. All Fellowships will start in September 2017.

2+3D Photography - Practice and Prophecies – 2017

Conference: 10 – 11 May 2017

The Rijksmuseum organizes, in cooperation with AHFAP, an international conference on 2D and 3D digital photography, best practices, standardized workflows and a variety of applications for cultural heritage photography professionals: photographers and studio managers. The aim of the conference is to provide us with a framework for international compatibility on the best practice methods for digitizing our heritage, and offers an outstanding and unique opportunity for exchanging ideas on how we should meet the challenges that lie ahead. This conference will also enable us to discuss how we can incorporate new techniques into international standards of practice.

After Post-Photography 3

Conference: 19 – 20 May 2017

The third edition of After Post-Photography will continue to explore how photographic images and realities – whatever they may be – are interconnected. Post-photographic critique is shared that these connections are by no means stable as concepts such as indexicality suggest. Yet in particular the practices of using and perceiving photographic images treat the images as if they indeed were imprints, records, representations or models of realities. The aim of the conference in particular is reconsidering and reflecting how notions such as indexicality and the truth of the photographic image retain their validity and importance even after they were deemed obsolete.

Languages of the conference are Russian and English.

Que font les images dans l'espace urbain? - What do images in public space do?

A dense two-and-a-half-day conference at the University of Geneva was held between Jan 18 and 20 2017. The idea derived from doctoral students around Professor Jean-Francois Staszak, notably from the Department of Geography. The definition of image was not restricted to images but to advertisements, public art and all kind of everyday visual material to be found in public space. This approach was reflected in the disciplines the many participants represented ranging from art historians, architects, artists, city officials and of course, geographers coming from Asia, Africa, Europe and America.

The different approaches and the enlarged definition of images in public space fostered the most inspiring and interesting discussions and made clear that images in public space need to be scrutinized through different lenses. The conference was adorned by Chicago University professor and acclaimed scholar in media theory and visual culture, W.J.T. Mitchell.

Diverse Migrations - Photography out of Bounds

Conference: 19 – 20 June 2017

Call for Papers, deadline: 27 January 2017

Diverse Migrations: Photography out of Bounds seeks to interrogate what social and other meaningful photographic practices emerge when photographs cross boundaries, and move between individuals, places, and distinct cultural environments. Paper proposals may concentrate on the following themes and other related subject matters:

- transnational and/or emerging photographic practices
- cross-cultural knowledge exchange through photography

- migrations across media
- sharing and exchanging photographs
- global forums for photography and its theoretisation

The Radical Eye: Modernist Photography from the Sir Elton John Collection

Exhibition: 10 November – 21 May 2017

This is a once-in-a-lifetime chance to see one of the world's greatest private collections of photography, drawn from the classic modernist period of the 1920s–50s. An incredible group of Man Ray portraits are exhibited together for the first time, having been brought together by Sir Elton John over the past twenty-five years, including portraits of Matisse, Picasso, and Breton. With over 70 artists and nearly 150 rare vintage prints on show from seminal figures including Brassai, Imogen Cunningham, André Kertész, Dorothea Lange, Tina Modotti, and Aleksandr Rodchenko, this is a chance to take a peek inside Elton John's home and delight in seeing such masterpieces of photography.

Developing Photopoetry

This project brings together more than 60 photographically illustrated poetry books from 1856-1921, spanning more than half a century of interactions between poets and photographers from both Britain and America.

By digitising and gathering these books into a single collection for the first time, this portal makes it possible to trace the development of themes, techniques and collaborative practices inherent to the "photopoetry" genre.

Conference: 20 – 21 April 2017

This conference investigates photographs and photographic archives in relation to notions of place. In this context, place is used to explore both the physical location of a photograph or archive, as well as the place of photography as a discursive practice with regard to its value or significance as a method of viewing and conceiving the world.

Avedon in Texas: Selections from In the American West

Exhibition: 25 February – 2 July 2017

When renowned New York City fashion and portrait photographer Richard Avedon (1923–2004) agreed in late 1978 to take on a commission from the Amon Carter to create a portrait of the American West through its people, he was filled with uncertainty about whether the project would succeed. The following spring he went to the Rattlesnake Round-Up in Sweetwater, Texas. That weekend he created six evocative portraits that would set the tone and bar for five more years of photographing. In these sittings, he discovered people who conveyed through their faces, clothes, and postures, not merely hard living but the full embrace of existence. This selection of 17 of the project's Texas images makes abundantly clear why In the American West has become a touchstone in photographic history.

Robert Cumming: The Secret Life of Objects

Exhibition: 18 February – 25 May 2017

Perception, language, and the nuances of photographic vision are common themes in the work of Robert Cumming (American, b. 1943). His method of portraying the physically impossible so that it appears visually accurate has its roots in his early career as a painter, sculptor, performance artist, and mail artist. Cumming's intent is to encourage viewers to reevaluate the world through his deep appreciation for absurdity. It is the first major US exhibition devoted exclusively to Robert Cumming's photography, which had a profound impact on the history of photography and the development of Conceptual art in the 1970s.

Perpetual Revolution. The Image and Social Change

Exhibition: 27 January – 7 May 2017

This exhibition proposes that an ongoing revolution is taking place politically, socially, and technologically, and that new digital methods of image production, display, and distribution are simultaneously both reporting and producing social change. The epic social and political transformations of the last few years would not have happened with the speed and in such depth if it weren't for the ever-expanding possibilities offered by this revolution.

Perpetual Revolution: The Image and Social Change presents six of these critical issues transformed by visual culture: #BlackLivesMatter, gender fluidity, climate change, terrorist propaganda, the right-wing fringe and the 2016 election, and the refugee crisis.

Magnum Manifesto

Exhibition: 26 May – 3 September 2017

A celebration of the legendary Magnum photo agency founded in 1947, this exhibition explores the world as seen through the lenses of a photographers' cooperative that has historically oscillated between photojournalism and art. Clément Chéroux, curator at the Centre Pompidou, has selected photographs, newspapers and magazines, and artist books that explore this powerful tension between objectivity and subjectivity.

In Focus: Jane and Louise Wilson's Sealander

Exhibition: 14 February – 2 July 2017

Working collaboratively since 1989, twin sisters Jane and Louise Wilson create powerful, compelling photographs, videos, and installations that explore historical events and architectural spaces that resonate with power. Their Sealander series presents images of abandoned World War II bunkers along the Normandy coastline of northern France. The monumental scale and monochromatic palette of the photographs merge time and space, past and present, man-made structure and natural environment, land and sea.

Thomas Annan: Photographer of Glasgow

Exhibition: 23 May – 13 August 2017

During the rise of industry in nineteenth-century Scotland, Thomas Annan ranked as the preeminent photographer in Glasgow. Best known for his haunting images of tenements on the verge of demolition—often considered precursors of the documentary tradition in photography—he prodigiously recorded the people, the social landscape, and the built environment of Glasgow and its outskirts for more than twenty-five years. This exhibition is the first to survey his industrious career and legacy as photographer and printer.

In Black and White: Photography, Race, and the Modern Impulse in Brazil at Midcentury

Conference: 2 – 3 May 2017

This conference investigates Brazilian modernist photography, its relationship to race, and its place within a dynamic international network of images and ideas. From experimental work that resonates with broader postwar trends of creative photographic expression to modern forms with local and sometimes ethnic inflections, photographers were instrumental in formulating new visual languages in Brazil. Since 1939, the São Paulo-based Foto Cine Clube Bandeirante (FCCB) nurtured a wide range of avant-garde practices that anticipated many elements of Concrete Art in Brazil featured at the first São Paulo Biennial in 1951. This diverse group included photographers from immigrant communities such as São Paulo's growing German, Jewish, Italian, and Japanese populations. These artists participated in international networks of exchange around the globe that increased their visibility and expanded their approach.

In the customer dialogue, the letter is an important tool in the cycle of shaping the relationship. As an information channel, it fulfils its traditional function. International letters. In business communication, the letter occupies a key position and will continue to do so in the future. Letters have a more binding effect than e-mails. They command a significantly higher degree of attention, underline the seriousness of the message and are a sign of appreciation towards the recipient.
